The Sinn Fein Policy. In his speech at Bailieborough on Sun day Mr. Dillon admitted, quite frankly, the parlous and discredited state of the Nationalist Parliamentary Party. FRIENDLY CHALLENGE TO SOUTHERN PROVINCES.

A valuable side-light on German om Mr. Dillon that the Nationalist brutality: "our road," wrote a German LONDON CORRESPONDENCE. ROLL OF HONOUR advertising of the War Loan will naturally be stopped as well as other advertisements.

A most significant feature of the recent fighting in Flanders is that some of the German regiments are no longer fighting with their former bravery. It is no secret that hitherto the German troops have displayed the utmost bravery—on occasions bravery that aroused the keenest admiration of our own troops—but the spirit is changing at last. The attitude of the officers and men who have lost all confidence. This loss of moral must play a most important part in the future, and it will be intensified by every advance on our side. There is reason to believe that one reason for this decline in moral is the fact that the German shortage of food has now extended to the armies in the field. One of the correspondents draws attention to the rallor of many of the German. extended to the armies in the field. One of the correspondents draws attention to the rallor of many of the German prisoners as contrasted with the brown and ruddy faces of their British captors, and attributes it to short rations. This should be an encouragement to us at home to submit cheerfully to any privations that the Food Controller may put upon us, knowing that thereby we are helping to ensure that our men in the field shall not go short of food like the Germans.

Deep sympathy with Queen Alexandra will be aroused by the news that her sister, the Empress Marie Feodorovna, is seriously ill in the Crimea. The great attachment between the sisters is well known, and they must have been drawn closer together by the many family losses and troubles they have experienced in recent years. We know very little about and troubles they have experienced in recent years. We know very little about the present circumstances of the Empress, though it was stated some months ago that she had been taken to her estate in the Crimea. It is unlikely that the Provisional Government would have felt it necessary to take any steps to deprive her of freedom in the district or to deny her any of her usual comforts. By the way, some of the papers describe the Empress as the ex-Dowager Empress. She cannot be an ex-Dowager, and courtesy-would say that a lady whose reign ceased with her husband's death could scarcely be called an ex-Empress.

Mr. Philip Laszlo's internment continues to excite great curiosity. A remarkable feature of the case is the fact that he was allowed to take out naturalisation papers after the commencement of the war, though he seems to have made no secret in his correspondence of his enemy sympathies. There is no doubt, I am afraid, that he is not the only person who has used his acquaintance with evaluation provides and the count naturalisation provides.

A most significant feature of the recent fighting in Flanders is that some of the German regiments are no longer fighting with their former bravery. It is no secret that hitherto the German troops have displayed the utmost bravery—on occasions bravery that aroused the keenest admiration of our own troops—but the spirit is changing at last. The attitude of the officers and men who fall into our hands is that of men who have lost all confidence. This loss of moral must play a most important part in the future, and it will be intensified by every advance on our side. There is reason to believe that one reason for this decline in moral is the fact that the German shortage of food has now extended to the armies in the field. One of the correspondents draws attention to extended to the armice in the field. One of the correspondents draws attention to the rallor of many of the German prisoners as contrasted with the brown and raddy faces of their British captors, and attributes it to short rations. This should be an encouragement to us at home to submit cheerfully to any privations that the Food Controller may put upon us, knowing that thereby see are helping to ensure that our men in the field shall not go short of food like the Germans.

Prespects of peace.

A Rome telegram, dated Sunday, says:—

"The Central Empires, in substance, do leave open the way to an exchange of ideas among the beligerents. This is the aim of Benedict XV.'s appeal, for he only intended to lay the foundations of negotiations which the Powers must complete and indicate precisely. This aim, if achieved, will unquestionably be the preluidic to the much desired dawn of peace.

This is the summary of an article in the official Vatican organ, the Osservatore Romano, which adds that, substantially, the Central Empires accept the proposal to negotiate peace on the basis indicated in the Papal appeal, for they agree on the first three conditions, namely—Disarmament and arbitration, freedom of the seas, and reciprocal renunciation of war expenses and damages. The Vatican organ considers that the replies are also sufficiently clear about the restoration of territories now occupied, as Germany recalls the manifestation in favour of peace in the Reichstag on July 19th, who it was said that Germany was not inspired by lists of conquest, but was fighting for the defence of her own liberty and independence, and the integrity of her own territorial possessions, and that also aspired to a peace without annexations or indemnities.

Therefore, the Ozerrestore Romano concludes, the acceptance of the terms expressed in the profice of the concludes of the con cathedral, killing seven and wounding twenty-four Belgians—that a careful examination of the photographs taken of Ostend after the bom-bardment shows no sign of a hit on the cathe-dral. On the other hand, the photographs indied, and that a portion of one submarine

The State Department's remarks about the connection between Count Bernstorf's policy and the U-boat war can be recognised as a misteading invention by curyone who knows the history preceding the U-boat war.

A pleasing function took place at the Spa Hotel, Lucan, on Saturday evening, when Mr. D. Mr. J. L. Donovan, M.P.; and Alderman Byrae, M.P., in having the railway taken over by the Government. FOR washing all those dainty fabrics which delight the eye, and give a true atmosphere of charm to the wardrobe and the home, there is nothing to compare with Lux.

Ladies know and appreciate its powers of keeping the delicate garments of the daintiest lingerie fresh and charming. Maids find it a great boos when cleaning bric-à-brac, siver, cutlery, mother-of-pearl, the little knick-knacks found in every room of the house. To trust the daintiest fabric to the soit, creamy lather of Lux is to renew in freshness and daintiness.
